Section II · Part A Text 1

Text 1（铁路票价上涨）

How can Britain's train operators possibly justify yet another increase to rail passenger fares? It has become a grimly reliable annual ritual: every January the cost of travelling by train rises, imposing a significant extra burden on those who have no option but to use the rail network to get to work or otherwise. This year's rise, an average of 2.7 percent, may be a fraction lower than last year's, but it is still well above the official Consumer Price Index (CPI) measure of inflation.

Successive governments have permitted such increases on the grounds that the cost of investing in and running the rail network should be borne by those who use it, rather than the general taxpayer. Why, the argument goes, should a car-driving pensioner from Lincolnshire have to subsidise the daily commute of a stockbroker from Surrey? Equally, there is a sense that the travails of commuters in the South East, many of whom will face among the biggest rises, have received too much attention compared to those who must endure the relatively poor infrastructure of the Midlands and the North.

However, over the past 12 months, those commuters have also experienced some of the worst rail strikes in years. It is all very well train operators trumpeting the improvements they are making to the network, but passengers should be able to expect a basic level of service for the substantial sums they are now paying to travel. The responsibility for the latest wave of strikes rests on the unions. However, there is a strong case that those who have been worst affected by industrial action should receive compensation for the disruption they have suffered.

The Government has pledged to change the law to introduce a minimum service requirement so that, even when strikes occur, services can continue to operate. This should form part of a wider package of measures to address the long-running problems on Britain's railways. Yes, more investment is needed, but passengers will not be willing to pay more indefinitely if they must also endure cramped, unreliable services, interrupted by regular chaos when timetables are changed, or planned maintenance is managed incompetently. The threat of nationalisation may have been seen off for now, but it will return with a vengeance if the justified anger of passengers is not addressed in short order.

21. The author holds that this year's increase in rail passenger fares ____

- will ease train operators' burden.
- has kept pace with inflation.
- is a big surprise to commuters.
- remains an unreasonable measure.

Section II · Part A Text 2

Text 2 (印尼扶贫与森林保护)

Last year marked the third year in a row that Indonesia's bleak rate of deforestation has slowed in pace. One reason for the turnaround may be the country's antipoverty program.

In 2007, Indonesia started phasing in a program that gives money to its poorest residents under certain conditions, such as requiring people to keep kids in school or get regular medical care. Called conditional cash transfers or CCTs, these social assistance programs are designed to reduce inequality and break the cycle of poverty. They're already used in dozens of countries worldwide. In Indonesia, the program has provided enough food and medicine to substantially reduce severe growth problems among children.

But CCT programs don't generally consider effects on the environment. In fact, poverty alleviation and environmental protection are often viewed as conflicting goals, says Paul Ferraro, an economist at Johns Hopkins University.

That's because economic growth can be correlated with environmental degradation, while protecting the environment is sometimes correlated with greater poverty. However, those correlations don't prove cause and effect. The only previous study analyzing causality, based on an area in Mexico that had instituted CCTs, supported the traditional view. There, as people got more money, some of them may have more cleared land for cattle to raise for meat, Ferraro says.

Such programs do not have to negatively affect the environment, though. Ferraro wanted to see if Indonesia's poverty-alleviation program was affecting deforestation. Indonesia has the third-largest area of tropical forest in the world and one of the highest deforestation rates.

Ferraro analyzed satellite data showing annual forest loss from 2008 to 2012 — including during Indonesia's phase-in of the antipoverty program — in 7,468 forested villages across 15 provinces. "We see that the program is associated with a 30 percent reduction in deforestation," Ferraro says.

That's likely because the rural poor are using the money as makeshift insurance policies against inclement weather, Ferraro says. Typically, if rains are delayed, people may clear land to plant more rice to supplement their harvests. With the CCTs, individuals instead can use the money to supplement their harvests.

Whether this research translates elsewhere is anybody's guess. Ferraro suggests the results may transfer to other parts of Asia, due to commonalities such as the importance of growing rice and market access. And regardless of transferability, the study shows that what's good for people may also be good for the environment. Even if this program didn't reduce poverty, Ferraro says, "the value of the avoided deforestation just for carbon dioxide emissions alone is more than the program costs."

26. According to the first two paragraphs, CCT programs aim to ____

- facilitate health care reform.
- help poor families get better off.
- improve local education systems.
- lower deforestation rates.

Text 3 (维多利亚人不微笑)

As a historian who's always searching for the text or the image that makes us re-evaluate the past, I've become preoccupied with looking for photographs that show our Victorian ancestors smiling (what better way to shatter the image of 19th-century prudery?). I've found quite a few, and — since I started posting them on Twitter — they have been causing quite a stir. People have been surprised to see evidence that Victorians had fun and could, and did, laugh. They are noting that the Victorians suddenly seem to become more human as the hundred-or-so years that separate us fade away through our common experience of laughter.

Of course, I need to concede that my collection of “Smiling Victorians” makes up only a tiny percentage of the vast catalogue of photographic portraiture created between 1840 and 1900, the majority of which show sitters posing miserably and stiffly in front of painted backdrops, or staring absently into the middle distance. How do we explain this trend?

During the 1840s and 1850s, in the early days of photography, exposure times were notoriously long: the daguerreotype photographic method (producing an image on a silvered copper plate) could take several minutes to complete, resulting in blurred images as sitters shifted position or adjusted their limbs. The thought of holding a fixed grin as the camera performed its magical duties was too much to contemplate, and so a non-committal blank stare became the norm.

But exposure times were much quicker by the 1880s, and the introduction of the Box Brownie and other portable cameras meant that, though slow by today's digital standards, the exposure was almost instantaneous. Spontaneous smiles were relatively easy to capture by the 1890s, so we must look elsewhere for an explanation of why Victorians still hesitated to smile.

One explanation might be the loss of dignity displayed through a cheesy grin. "Nature gave us lips to conceal our teeth," ran one popular Victorian saying, alluding to the fact that before the birth of proper dentistry, mouths were often in a shocking state of hygiene. A flashing set of healthy and clean, regular "pearly whites" was a rare sight in Victorian society, the preserve of the super-rich (and even then, dental hygiene was not guaranteed).

A toothy grin (especially when there were gaps or blackened teeth) lacked class: drunks, tramps, and music hall performers might gurn and grin with a smile as wide as Lewis Carroll's gum-exposing Cheshire Cat, but it was not a becoming look for properly bred persons. Even Mark Twain, a man who enjoyed a hearty laugh, said that when it came to photographic portraits there could be "nothing more damning than a silly, foolish smile fixed forever".

31. According to Paragraph 1, the author's posts on Twitter ____

- changed people's impression of the Victorians.
- highlighted social media's role in Victorian studies.
- re-evaluated the Victorians' notion of public image.
- illustrated the development of Victorian photography.

Section II · Part A Text 4

Text 4 (网络中立与 FCC)

From the early days of broadband, advocates for consumers and web-based companies worried that the cable and phone companies selling broadband connections had the power and incentive to favor affiliated websites over their rivals'. That's why there has been such a strong demand for rules that would prevent broadband providers from picking winners and losers online, preserving the freedom and innovation that have been the lifeblood of the Internet.

Yet that demand has been almost impossible to fill — in part because of pushback from broadband providers, anti-regulatory conservatives and the courts. A federal appeals court weighed in again Tuesday, but instead of providing a badly needed resolution, it only prolonged the fight. At issue before the US Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit was the latest take of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) on net neutrality, adopted on a party-line vote in 2017. The Republican penned order not only eliminated the strict net neutrality rules the FCC had adopted when it had a Democratic majority in 2015, but rejected the commission's authority to require broadband providers to do much of anything. The order also declared that state and local governments couldn't regulate broadband providers either.

The commission argued that other agencies would protect against anti-competitive behavior, such as a broadband-providing conglomerate like AT&T favoring its own video-streaming service at the expense of Netflix and Apple TV. Yet the FCC also ended the investigations of broadband providers that imposed data caps on their rivals' streaming services but not their own.

On Tuesday, the appeals court unanimously upheld the 2017 order deregulating broadband providers, citing a Supreme Court ruling from 2005 that upheld a similarly deregulatory move. But Judge Patricia Millett rightly argued in a concurring opinion that "the result is unhinged from the realities of modern broadband service," and said Congress or the Supreme Court could intervene to "avoid trapping Internet regulation in technological anachronism."

In the meantime, the court threw out the FCC's attempt to block all state rules on net neutrality, while preserving the commission's power to preempt individual state laws that undermine its order. That means more battles like the one now going on between the Justice Department and California, which enacted a tough net neutrality law in the wake of the FCC's abdication.

The endless legal battles and back-and-forth at the FCC cry out for Congress to act. It needs to give the commission explicit authority once and for all to bar broadband providers from meddling in the traffic on their network and to create clear rules protecting openness and innovation online.

36. There has long been concern that broadband providers would ____

- bring web-based firms under control.
- slow down the traffic on their network.
- show partiality in treating clients.
- intensify competition with their rivals.

Section II · Part B 新题型（41–45 选句填空）

下面文章中有 5 处空白（41–45），请从 A–G 中选出最合适的句子填入（有两项多余）。

41–45 解题方法与技巧（选句填空题·先看这里）

- 先读小标题：本篇给出各段主题（Better hiring / More effective marketing...），先明确每段在讲什么。
- 抓关键词复现：选项中的名词、动词常与空格前后句同义复现（resumes↔hiring；advertising↔marketing；insure↔premiums；accurate↔accuracy）。
- 看指代与逻辑：Before... / also / This process 等衔接词提示上下文关系。
- 排干扰项：多余项常“话题相近但落点不符”（如 A、D 谈自动化与客户渠道，与本篇“不取代员工”的落点不合）。
- 先易后难、代入复核：先定最明显的（41 招聘、42 营销），再处理其余；最后连读检查是否通顺。

备选句子（A–G，其中两项多余）

- A. AI replaces the boring parts of your job. If you're doing research, you can have AI go out and look for relevant sources and information that otherwise you just wouldn't have time for.
- B. There are also companies like Acquisio, which analyzes advertising performance across multiple channels like Adwords, Bing and social media and makes adjustments or suggestions about where advertising funds will yield best results.
- C. One accounting firm, EY, uses an AI system that helps review contracts during an audit. This process, along with employees reviewing the contracts, is faster and more accurate.
- D. We're also giving our customers better channels versus picking up the phone to accomplish something beyond human scale.
- E. You want to predict if something needs attention now and point to where it's useful for employees to go to.
- F. AI looks at resumes in greater numbers than humans would be able to, and selects the more promising candidates.
- G. Before, they might not insure the ones who felt like a high risk or charge them too much, or they would charge them too little and then it would cost the company money.

原文 ({{41}})–(45) 为待填空)

In the movies and on television, artificial intelligence (AI) is typically depicted as something sinister that will upend our way of life. When it comes to AI in business, we often hear about it in relation to automation and the impending loss of jobs, but in what ways is AI changing companies and the larger economy that don't involve doom-and-gloom mass unemployment predictions?

A recent survey of manufacturing and service industries from Tata Consultancy Services found that companies currently use AI more often in computer-to-computer activities than in automating human activities. Here are a few ways AI is aiding companies without replacing employees:

Better hiring practices. Companies are using artificial intelligence to remove some of the unconscious bias from hiring decisions. "There are experiments that show that, naturally, the results of interviews are much more biased than what AI does," says Pedro Domingos, author of The Master Algorithm and a computer science professor at the University of Washington. In addition, "(41) _____" One company that's doing this is called Blendoor. It uses analytics to help identify where there may be bias in the hiring process.

More effective marketing. Some AI software can analyze and optimize marketing email subject lines to increase open rates. One company in the UK, Phrasee, claims their software can outperform humans by up to 10 percent when it comes to email open rates. This can mean millions more in revenue. (42) _____ These are "tools that help people use data, not a replacement for people," says Patrick H. Winston, a professor of artificial intelligence and computer science at MIT.

Saving customers money. Energy companies can use AI to help customers reduce their electricity bills, saving them money while helping the environment. Companies can also optimize their own energy use and cut down on the cost of electricity. Insurance companies, meanwhile, can base their premiums on AI models that more accurately assess risk. Domingos says, "(43) _____"

Improved accuracy. "Machine learning often provides a more reliable form of statistics, which makes data more valuable," says Winston. It "helps people make smarter decisions." (44) _____

Protecting and maintaining infrastructure. A number of companies, particularly in energy and transportation, use AI image processing technology to inspect infrastructure and prevent equipment failure or leaks before they happen. "If they fail first and then you fix them, it's very expensive," says Domingos. "(45) _____"

Section II · Part C 英译中 (46–50)

先自己翻译划线句，再点“显示答案”对照；注意定语从句、非谓语与语序调整。

原文全文（划线句为 46–50，未省略）

World War II was the watershed event for higher education in modern Western societies. (46) Those societies came out of the war with levels of enrollment that had been roughly constant at 3%-5% of the relevant age groups during the decades before the war. But after the war, great social and political changes arising out of the successful war against Fascism created a growing demand in European and American economies for increasing numbers of graduates with more than a secondary school education. (47) And the demand that rose in those societies for entry to higher education extended to groups and social classes that had not thought of attending a university before the war. These demands resulted in a very rapid expansion of the systems of higher education, beginning in the 1960s and developing very rapidly (though unevenly) during the 1970s and 1980s. The growth of higher education manifests itself in at least three quite different ways, and these in turn have given rise to different sets of problems. There was first the rate of growth: (48) in many countries of Western Europe, the numbers of students in higher education doubled within five-year periods during the 1960s and doubled again in seven, eight, or 10 years by the middle of the 1970s. Second, growth obviously affected the absolute size both of systems and individual institutions. And third, growth was reflected in changes in the proportion of the relevant age group enrolled in institutions of higher education. Each of these manifestations of growth carried its own peculiar problems in its wake. For example, a high growth rate placed great strains on the existing structures of governance, of administration, and above all of socialization. When a faculty or department grows from, say, five to 20 members within three or four years, (49) and when the new staff are predominantly young men and women fresh from postgraduate study, they largely define the norms of academic life in that faculty. And if the postgraduate student population also grows rapidly and there is loss of a close apprenticeship relationship between faculty members and students, the student culture becomes the chief socializing force for new postgraduate students, with consequences for the intellectual and academic life of the institution. (50) High growth rates increased the chances for academic innovation; they also weakened the forms and processes by which teachers and students are admitted into a community of scholars during periods of stability or slow growth.

46. Those societies came out of the war with levels of enrollment that had been roughly constant at 3%-5% of the relevant age groups during the decades before the war.

答案

47. And the demand that rose in those societies for entry to higher education extended to groups and social classes that had not thought of attending a university before the war.

答案

48. in many countries of Western Europe, the numbers of students in higher education doubled within five-year periods during the 1960s and doubled again in seven, eight, or 10 years by the middle of the 1970s.

答案

50. High growth rates increased the chances for academic innovation; they also weakened the forms and processes by which teachers and students are admitted into a community of scholars during periods of stability or slow growth.

P2	解读含义	The father’s reply tells us that we should follow our own interest rather than others’ opinions.
P3	评论建议	We should respect children’s interests and persist in what we truly love.

第四步 逐句写成文（范文）

As is shown in the picture, a child tells his father that many of his classmates think learning to sing opera is not fun. The father answers calmly, “Don’t you like it yourself? That is enough.”

The picture conveys a meaningful message: when we pursue something we truly love, we should not be swayed by others’ opinions. Interest is the best teacher and the strongest motivation. If we give up our hobbies simply because others laugh at them, we may lose both our passion and our confidence. Besides, parents’ understanding and support are of great importance to children, for they can help the young keep their dreams alive.

In my view, we should learn to listen to our own hearts and persist in what we really enjoy. At the same time, parents and teachers should respect children’s interests and encourage them to develop their own talents. Only in this way can we live a fuller and happier life.

第五步 检查

长难句精讲（四步拆句·一目了然）

四步法：① 找主干（几个谓语切几段，先划掉从句/插入语）→ ② 理枝叶（每块修饰谁）→ ③ 排语序（定语前置/长状语拆句）→ ④ 出译文。

1. But while aging is inevitable, scientists are finding out that certain changes in brain function may not be.

- ① 主干 Scientists are finding out that certain changes in brain function may not be (inevitable). (科学家正发现某些变化或许并非不可避免。)
- ② 枝叶 while aging is inevitable → 让步状语从句；that... → 宾语从句；句末省略了 inevitable，避免重复。
- ③ 语序 让步从句提前译“虽然……”；宾语从句补出省略内容。
- ④ 译文 但虽然衰老不可避免，科学家们正发现，大脑功能的某些变化或许并非不可避免。

2. One study found that muscle loss and the accumulation of body fat around the abdomen are associated with a decline in fluid intelligence.

- ① 主干 One study found that muscle loss and the accumulation of body fat are associated with a decline. (一项研究发现，肌肉流失与脂肪堆积同智力下降相关。)
- ② 枝叶 that... → 宾语从句；muscle loss and the accumulation of... → 并列主语；be associated with 与……相关。
- ③ 语序 宾语从句顺译，“around the abdomen”作后置定语译“腹部（脂肪）”。
- ④ 译文 一项研究发现，肌肉流失和腹部脂肪的堆积与流体智力下降相关。

3. They found that middle-aged people with higher measures of abdominal fat scored worse on measures of fluid intelligence as the years went by.

- ① 主干 They found that middle-aged people scored worse on measures of fluid intelligence. (他们发现中年人流体智力得分更差。)
- ② 枝叶 that... → 宾语从句；with higher measures of abdominal fat → 介词短语作后置定语；as the years went by → 时间状语从句。
- ③ 语序 定语译“腹部脂肪指标更高的（中年人）”；时间状语前置“随着岁月流逝”。
- ④ 译文 他们发现，随着岁月流逝，腹部脂肪指标更高的中年人在流体智力测试中得分更差。

4. This year's rise, an average of 2.7 percent, may be a fraction lower than last year's, but it is still well above the official Consumer Price Index (CPI) measure of inflation.

◎ 有插入语(—...— / (...))：第①步先划掉，主干立即清晰

- ① 主干 This year's rise may be a fraction lower, but it is still well above the CPI measure. (今年的涨幅或许略低，但仍远高于 CPI 通胀指标。)
- ② 枝叶 an average of 2.7 percent → 同位语插入语；a fraction lower than → 比较结构；but 连接两个并列分句。
- ③ 语序 同位语用破折号/括号译出；比较与转折顺译。
- ④ 译文 今年的涨幅平均为 2.7%，虽比去年略低，但仍远高于官方消费者价格指数（CPI）所衡量的通胀水平。

5. Why, the argument goes, should a car-driving pensioner from Lincolnshire have to subsidise the daily commute of a stockbroker from Surrey?

- ① 主干 Why should a pensioner subsidise the commute of a stockbroker? (为什么一位养老金者要补贴一位股票经纪人的通勤？)
- ② 枝叶 the argument goes → 插入语“这种说法认为”；should... 为反问；from Lincolnshire / from Surrey → 后置定语。
- ③ 语序 插入语先译“这种说法认为”；反问句保持问句语气。
- ④ 译文 这种说法认为，凭什么一位来自林肯郡的开车养老金者，要去补贴一位来自萨里郡的股票经纪人的日常通勤呢？

6. It is all very well train operators trumpeting the improvements they are making to the network, but passengers should be able to expect a basic level of service for the substantial sums they are now paying to travel.

- ① 主干 It is all very well..., but passengers should be able to expect a basic level of service. (.....固然好，但乘客理应期待基本的服务。)
- ② 枝叶 It is all very well...but... → 固定句式“固然可以.....但.....”；trumpeting... → 现在分词作主语补足；they are making to the network → 定语从句；for the substantial sums → 状语。
- ③ 语序 让步部分译“固然可以.....但.....”；两个定语从句前置译“.....的”。
- ④ 译文 铁路运营商固然可以大肆宣扬他们对路网的改进，但乘客既然支付了高额费用，就理应期待基本的服务水平。

7. That's because economic growth can be correlated with environmental degradation, while protecting the environment is sometimes correlated with greater poverty. ★ 嵌套较深：建议拆成 2 句顺译

- ① 主干 That's because economic growth can be correlated with degradation. (那是因为经济增长可能与环境退化相关。)
- ② 枝叶 That's because... → 表原因；be correlated with 与.....相关；while... → 对比状语从句。
- ③ 语序 原因顺译；while 译“而.....”。
- ④ 译文 那是因为经济增长可能与环境退化相关，而保护环境有时又与更严重的贫困相关。

8. When a faculty or department grows from, say, five to 20 members within three or four years, and when the new staff are predominantly young men and women fresh from postgraduate study, they largely define the norms of academic life in that faculty. ★ 嵌套较深：建议拆成 2 句顺译

- ① 主干 They largely define the norms of academic life.（他们在很大程度上界定了学术生活的规范。）
- ② 枝叶 两个 when 引导并列时间状语从句；say 插入语“比方说”；fresh from... → 形容词短语作后置定语。
- ③ 语序 两个 when 从句顺译“当……并且当……”；fresh from 译“刚毕业的”。
- ④ 译文 当某个院系在三四年内从比方说 5 人扩大到 20 人，并且当新进教师大多是刚毕业的研究生时，他们在很大程度上界定了该院系学术生活的规范。
